TALKING UP THE FAIR.

McCanna Doing Good Work for Territorial Exposition.

From the Las Vegas Optic.

Peter J. McCanna, the affable and widely popular secretary of Albuquerque's Commercial club, was one of the unfortunates who propped their eyes open during an all night vigil at Baton last night waiting for the trains that were so long in coming. He stayed over here, not to recover from the effects but to confer with A. H. Whitmore, regarding insurance matters and to see the famous new driving park and fair grounds of which he had heard so much about. Mr. McCanna is on his way back from a visit in Colorado. He was astonished to hear so much talk of the new Las Vegas race track. He says nearly all the horsemen he talked with, said they intended to send horses here for the fall races. Mr. McCanna believes that the Albuquerque and Las Vegas track events will be mutually helpful. This city can secure all the horses that Albuquerque gets for the fair for the October races.

Speaking about the fair this fall, Mr. McCanna said it would be bigger and more successful than ever. Already eight thousand dollars had been raised to pay for the attractions. The attractions would be more numerous and everything would be carried out on a grander scale than ever. Mr. McCanna will go to the park on an inspecting tour in the morning.

A Deplorable Accident.
One of the most deplorable accidents which we have been called upon to chronicle for some time past happened last Tuesday afternoon at the ranch of Joe Bertinetti, three miles west of town. Rosina, Mr. Bertinetti's little twelve year old girl was sent to the well, which is an old fashioned affair with only a windlass and rope to operate it, for the purpose of drawing a bucket of water. The handle of the windlass either hit her or her dress became entangled in the rope in some manner and she was precipitated to the bottom of the well which has only about three feet of water in it and is 125 feet deep. A little sister of the child at once gave the alarm and she was immediately rescued. She evidently must have hit on her head and face when she fell for her mouth and lower jaw was terribly disfigured and she was unable to breathe freely. Death put an end to her sufferings a little later in the evening, although everything that could be done for the unfortunate little one.—Gallup Republican.

He left the proceedings of the Council at one time, and visited the Kentucky state democratic convention held in session just to see how the Bourbonian of that state conducted a convention. He was satisfied with his visit, for it was lively all through, and he witnessed the complete victory of Governor Beekham over the combined opposition of Senators Blackburn and McCrory and nearly all the congressmen. While absent from the city he visited relatives and friends in New York, and on route home he stopped over at Chicago and met the New Mexico delegation there in attendance at the national republican convention.

CUPID'S HUNT.

Hunt, Dan Cupid, spy around! Search the woods from bound to bound.
Seek my love, ere straying far, She is snatched to make a star.
Set the fly-bells ringing, Send the butterflies a-winging; Leave your torch; the darkest places She'll illumine with his graces. Where the hawthorns foam to whiteness,

She has passed and scattered brightness.
How to know her when you meet her? Philomel has voice no sweeter; You will know her by her smiling, By her absolute beguiling.

By the speech with which she melts you,
By the breath more sweet than piny, By the two lips soft and rosy, By the eyes amazing tender, By the waist and ankles slender; And to name no other feature, By the best in every creature.

If you find her, swift assign her, In the name of love detain her; Stay not! or she'll take your arrows; Mount her car and drive your sparrows!

If her sugared words you drink, boy Cupid, you shall be her link boy; Bring her, then, with all her blazes, To the prison of my bliss.

—Henry Hardy Hay.

THE HAAS BROTHERS

Three of Them Have Fallen in Love With Jane Segur.

ROMANCES STAINED WITH BLOOD

Jane Segur, or Haas, the latter being the name she has borne for many years, has had two romances, both stained with blood, and her third may be bloodless—if the prospective bride and groom got away in time. Jane Segur is to marry the third of the Haas brothers. She had previously married the other two, but death intervened and she became twice a widow. The third Haas seems to have no fear, but all the good shots in Montezuma county are not dead yet and there is no telling what may happen. Twice married and widowed, Mrs. Haas is soon to become a bride for the third time, and is willing to run all risks.

Thirty years ago William Haas was a prosperous young merchant at Mount Gilboa, O., but the balm in that Gilead was not sufficient to satisfy the yearnings of his soul for greater wealth, so he removed his goods and other belongings to Cortez, Neb., and set up a trading house.

The belle of Cortez when Haas first made his appearance was Jane Segur, and she was as pretty as a maiden daisy.

Two brothers by the name of Segur, were particularly attentive to Jane, and they gave it out that the man who married Jane had better make his will before the marriage ceremony was performed.

Now it happened that little Jane had fallen in love with William Haas, and accepted his offer of heart and hand. When the Segurs heard of it they became more than ordinarily strenuous. They talked to Haas in an unseemly manner until his Ohio blood becoming hot he was roused to anger, and he promptly added a full charge of large shot to the weight of one of the brothers, causing death almost instantly.

When the interest in the death of Segur had died down, says the Chicago Tribune, Haas led his bride to the altar and continued business at the old stand, not caring to be away on a honeymoon trip. His business prospered, and everything went along smoothly until one night as he was going home from his store he was shot dead from ambush, the bullet fired by the unseen foe entering his heart. The finger of suspicion, as it is sometimes called, was pointed at the surviving Segur, but when he asked the men of Cortez to proclaim publicly that they thought he was the man, not one of them opened his mouth. This particular Segur was the best shot in several counties.

John Haas went to Cortez from Mount Gilboa to settle up his brother's business affairs, for the widow was too prostrated to think of anything but her sorrows, but she brightened up after John's arrival. He was not bad looking, and, being a good business man, soon straightened out all the commercial kinks. He had business to attend to in Ohio, but he lengthened his stay, at Cortez until it was too late to return. He had fallen in love with his brother's widow, and the end of it all was that he married her. He, like his brother William lived happily with Jane, who was still the most beautiful woman in Cortez, until his sudden death. Whether the Segur brother still had vengeance in his heart or not is not known, but it is said he was in town when William died.

There was still another Haas brother, named Henry, at Mount Gilboa, and it became his duty to go west and look after the interests of the widow. He was more or less reluctant, but he did not shrink his duty. He went to Cortez, but the business in proper shape, and then began to linger. He might have gone back to Ohio again, but he didn't.

The widow was not so young as when she first married, but her eyes were still bright, and Henry, being unmarried, liked her. To all appearances she was not adverse to his company, and at last he ventured to suggest that it would not be a bad idea if they became man and wife. As a saving clause he remarked that it was better, perhaps, if they were wed at Mount Gilboa, and made their permanent residence there. He thought the climate of Cortez unhealthy. She agreed with him, and in a few days they will go to Mount Gilboa, get married, and reside at the old Haas homestead.

City Directory.

The new city directory of Albuquerque, just issued by the Evening Citizen, is altogether the most complete work of the kind ever printed in this city. It contains a great fund of information about the town in addition to the directory proper, which will make it of much value, especially to newcomers. Its carefully collected and very complete list of names and residences makes it a ready reference volume which our citizens will find practically indispensable, and mechanically, in typography, press work and binding, it is as good a job of the sort as can be done anywhere. It is creditable alike to the town and to the publishers.—Morning Journal.

El Paso's Convention Hall.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the irrigation congress met yesterday and virtually dropped all propositions looking to the building of a permanent convention hall and ordered plans to be drawn for a temporary hall to cost between $2,500 and $3,000.—Times.

SUPERINTENDENT ESLAVIO VIGIL

SERVED WITH A WARRANT—WAIVED EXAMINATION AND IS BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY.

Alvan Dimas this morning swore to a complaint charging Eslavio Vigil with assault with intent to kill. A warrant was drawn up in Justice Crawford's court and served on Vigil, who was present with his attorney, W. C. Hancock, by Policeman Salazar. The service was made in the Spanish language. Attorney Hancock waived preliminary hearing and Vigil was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bonds, which was furnished. Superintendent Vigil's arrest was the result of a fight in which he and Dimas engaged in last Monday morning on Nicholas avenue and in which Dimas came out a very poor second best.

Today was the first time since the fight that Dimas has been able to leave his home since the day of the battle, and his entrance to the court room, with a wide bandage across his head holding in place over the wounds a large piece of medicated cotton, was very unsteady.

How About the Heavens?

A court of the church and saloon attendance in Paddington, a district of London, having a population of 142,000, made by agents of W. T. Stead, on a recent Sunday, showed that the saloon attendance was the greater by ten to one. Only 16,000 women attended church, while 25,000 were found in saloons.

HARRY HUCK AT DEMING

HE IS STOPPING AT "THE VICTORIA" AND HIS HEALTH HAS IMPROVED.

Last April, a year ago, Harry Huck, disappeared from the Alvarado hotel, and his going was so mysterious as far as the general public was concerned that many thought that something serious had happened to him. It was known that his health was bad; that he was very nervous, almost on the verge of collapse, and that he was dependent. Putting this and that together, the opinion prevailed among those with whom he associated that he had wandered off and sooner or later his remains would be found.

Such was not the case, for instead of wandering off into the mountains he accepted the advice of W. H. Grover and visited the home ranch of the Victorio Land and Cattle company in Grant county. He remained on the ranch for several months and gained strength at once. On leaving the ranch he has been stopping with John Cain, proprietor of "The Victoria" hotel. Cain and wife have been exceedingly good to Mr. Huck, who came to them as a total stranger, and much credit is due them for the present improvement in the health of the young man. As previously stated in these columns, Harry Huck is the son of a Chicago millionaire, and his sister is the wife of Marshall Field, Jr., of that city.

Ready for $50,000 Handicap.

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—Everything is so ready for the World's Fair handicap to be run at the fair grounds tomorrow. Though Herald, The Picket and other horses that have been most prominent on the eastern tracks this spring will not take part, the entry list includes a sufficient number of famous winners to insure one of the greatest races of the American turf year. The race will be at a distance of a mile and a quarter and the owners of the winner will be enriched to the extent of $50,000. The keen interest manifested in the race is evidenced by the arrival of parties of horsemen and other followers of the turf from New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Memphis, Louisville and numerous other points.

TERRITORIAL FAIR.

Citizens of Albuquerque Have Raised $7,500 to Make This Year's Exhibition the Largest Ever Held in the Southwest.

P. F. McCanna, for many years secretary of the New Mexico Fair association, spent last Friday in our town and gave this once a pleasant talk.

As usual Pete is enthusiastic about the fair and when the matter was mentioned, talked freely in regard to the elaborate preparation which is being made by the association and the citizens of the Duke City for the great event of the year is New Mexico.

He stated that $7,500 had been subscribed for the purpose and that the prizes would be larger and more numerous than in former years. One of the features which he mentioned was that a large prize would be offered for a strictly local horse ball contest now but New Mexico players being allowed
